Puris Exposition Prizes.

The United States received more prizes at the Paris Exposition than any other nation, except I rance, the total being 1,981. It is also a remarkable fact, that though the inhabitants of every country suffer from digestive tipubles, and though every clime offers some alleviative therefrom, it remains for America to produce an absolutely reliable remedy for such common diseases. This remedy is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Half a century ago, it was placed upon the market, and from that day to this, it has never been equalled. It has an atmost unparalleled record for the core of dyspepsia, indigestion, constitution, sick headache, sour stomach, belching, heartburn, nervousness, fatague, the VISITING GETTYSBURG. With the Royal Arcinum convention which opens here to morrow will begin what promises to be a season of considerable activity for Gettysburg in the line of public entertainment, especially for those who provide accommodation for Battleheld and general visitors. In addition to the large clowds which will be here in attendance upon the various lengaged to furnish music at New Oxford conventions to be held all of which have been mentioned in our columns several Day times, the probabilities are that more than the usual number of tourists  $\mathbf{w}$  J visit the Field

Gettysburg as a visiting point is becoming each year of greater to sumation to the travelling public, owing to the increasing attractions of the Nation il Park It is of national renown and a place of the greatest national interest and will likely draw the attention of people to a greater degree us the magni tude and beauty of the improvements to the Battlefield become more commonly known I utlermore the clum of the national scenery surrounding Getty sburg in itself adds much to the pleasure of sign file ?

As a very large proportion of the nonuments to be placed on the Field mve been already erected it is not likely that we will be called upon in the near uture to en ertain the mony immense crowds which in former cars the town o eapt) ly accommedated. Those who come hereafter will be generally sight mers and representative bodies who are thracted by the name which deltysburg is gaining as the most note i and most inof the historic places of the land.

The Royal Arganum doubtless on a si lered this attriction in its selection of Ge tysburg as its place of meeting this year, and it is our home that the or range t on, its officers, representatives and visiting friends may have even greater pleasure and trofit in visiting on town then they may have anticiputed. We extend to them a condition welcome

The fire in the South Mountain which Vamplin, C. S. Navy, and w.b. and C. has been quite noticeable from here since I. Danpwolf and A. L. Johnson, of Saturday morning is one of the fiercest and most destructive which has raged in that region for many years. It started at a point about six miles in a southwesterly direction from Cashtown and several miles south of the Chambersburg pipe, and in its course has burned about four miles over the mountain in an easterly direction.

It was fought by firing against it from the road which runs from Willow Grove. in Franklin township, to the Cold Spring road and was thought to be under contro vesterday morning, but it broke out again and burned in a northerly direction toward M. Mullen, of Baltimore, will also deliver the Chambersburg pike. Thousands of agree of timber have been destroyed. It is believed to have started from a fire

PLANTING CORN. HILL VS. DRILL METHODS - ARGUMENTS

FOR AND AGAINST During the past two years considerable interest has been displayed by a large number of farmers in Illinois as to the best method of planting corn, one class favoring drilling the seed, while the majority were in favor of the ordinary practice of planting in hills. In order to throw some light upon this question the Illinois Experiment Station conducted an extensive series of tests, comparing the yields from plots planted by both methods. In every case, an equal amount of space was devoted to each system, and an equal number of stalks was grown on all the plots. For instance, four stalks were left in each hill, the hills being three feet eight inches apart. On the drilled plots one stalk was left exery eleven inches, so that the number of drilled stalks equalled the number of stalks in hills in the same space. This experiment was tried with an early and a late variety, the Pride of the North and the Yellow Mastodon. The results uniformly showed little difference in yield. The cultivation was the same for both the drilled and the hilled, except that the hilled plots were crossed in the second and fourth cultivation, while the hilled was cultivated four times lengthwise of the rows. The experiment was repeated often enough to eliminate the difference in soils. The conclusion was reached therefore, that so far as the method of planting was concerned, or the growth of the plants in hills or drills affecting the development of the stalk or ear, both methods gave equally good results. The general impression among farmers seems to be that drilling corn in new land will give larger yields than where it is hilled There is little doubt but that this impression is correct, but the larger yield is not due to the distribution of the stalks in the drilled corn, but to the fact that more corn was planted in the drilled than in the hilled fields. This conclusion is borne out by the result of a similar experiment with the number of stalks in the hill. It was found that a larger number of stalks in the hill gave larger yields than a less number of stalks indicating that so far as yield is eon cerned, the larger number of stalks gives the largest yield on the rich prairie leum soil. Further, as it is impossible to cultivate the drilled fields both ways with the ordinary shovel cultivator, it is not practical to plant a weedy field in drills. No doubt, as our seed corn becomes more uniform and of better quality, a less number of stalks will be required to produce the same or larger yields. In this event, the objection to hilling will be removed, as one or two stalks will constitute a good stand and therefore remove the possibility of the evil effects of competition between the four or five statks in the thickly-seeded hill of corn. CARE OF COWS.

CLEANLINESS AND KINDNESS A NECESSIT IN EVERY DEPARTMENT.

The well-bred, high-producing cow is more sensitive to her surroundings than the most delicately-constructed machinery, and is greatly affected by slight causes, says C. L. Peck in the National Former. A cow in my own herd that, under my own personal care, produced over 600 pounds of butter and 10,000 pounds of milk in a year, when placed under the care of another and equally well fed, dropped off to about one-half that amount and, on her return to my own stable, came back to her former production. Cows should be milked, so far as possible, by the same person, in the same order and at the same time of day to realize their full capacity. There no time or labor expended in the dairy that brings so large a return for the investment as a proper use of the card and brush three minutes per day per cow for that period in the year when they are confined in the stable. The cow that will produce 250 pounds of butter in a year will, as a rule, by the aid of he card and brush, kindly and well used, increase to 360 pounds on feed and care otherwise the same. I have tried this and speak from personal careful experiment. The care of cows includes care of stables. In the dairy business cleanliness is next to godliness. Clean bedding, ample absorbents in the gutters, and for this purpose gypsum or land plaster is among the best. Two pounds per cow-per day put in the drop behind each cowwill do away with most of the offensive smell of the stable and absorb most of the liquid droppings. The effect of kind treatment of a cow can hardly be overated. She should know and welcome the voice of her master and attendant. speaking to her when he comes near her the trouble in the pail. the aims of nature and an abuse of man's power. The pigeon is eminently a peace-loving bird and its nature is s lifferent from those of the screaming eagle and falcon that as an emblem of war it should be a total failure. Never theless the timid bird has served armies in time of need, and is cultivated for it practical war usefulness to an exten never dreamed of for either the falcon or the day.

The pigeon post at Durbau, in South Africa, was the beginning of the pigeon experiments conducted in recent campaigns between the Euglish and Boers, one part of the English army to another by means of the birds. Colonel Hazzard. of the Royal Engineers, a staff officer at the Cape, has made a life study of the carrier-pigeons, and before the war broke out he had established pigeon posts be ween most of the beleagured cities From Ladysmith, Kimberly and Mafe king, pigeons early in the sieges regular y brought messages from the English eddiers cooped up in the towns. As a great mililary camp, Europe looks on the carrier pigeon as a menace to the country if not country or sold without permission from the military authorities. In the event of a war, the German authorities reserve the right to claim and take possession of every carrier-pigeon in the land. The United States military and naval authorities have approved of the pigeons as aids to the regular telegraphic means of communication, and there are several posts established in the West and along the Atlantic. But on the whole this country depends more upon private breeders for its supply of earrier pigeons than upon the birds already in the service of the army or navy. Our great distance by sea from all other powerful nations necessary to arrange for the ervices of carrier-pigeons as the European countries have done. There is little chance of any foreign army invading this country and destroying the railroad and telegraph lines connecting the blg cities. Pigeon breeding and training have therefore been carried on in the United States more in the interests of peace and pleasure. There are hundreds of enthusiastic owners in every State in the Union, and probably in no country has the work of rearing the birds been

The fact is, it prevails on a hundred promises, and the owners do not know it is there. It is the most fatal insect ravager that has ever visited us. It has killed a peach tree, to our knowledge, in a single year. It is not noticed, as a rule, until its fatal work has so far progressed as to render all efforts to save the tree fruitless. A close examination, will easily detect its presence. The twigs and limbs assume an ashen-gray hue, from the color of the scale, at 3.00 and soon the bark is encrusted with the Catarrh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldem met with. It is customary to speak of Catarrh as nothing more serious than a bad cold a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.

Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates from the system of catarrhal secretious, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.
